Landlords, what's in it for you?

How to maximise your home's potential!

Are you looking for consistent, reliable and uninterrupted income with no void periods whilst also creating lasting social value?

Zetetick are currently looking for properties across the South East, particularly South London, the A23 corridor and Kent.

We're looking for:
- One to four beds
- EPC rating: C +
- HMO and single services

We match property to our tenant's wants and needs. Alongside our care partners, we book viewings and begin negotiations. Once everything is signed, you have Zetetick as a long term, high quality tenant.

Here's the easy bit for you: the repairs are done in-house. Your usual call outs for maintenance? Yes, they are covered by us. If you end your lease with us, we'll ensure your property is left in at least the same condition we received it.

By renting your property to us, you are given the unique opportunity to create lasting social value. You're directly helping individuals with learning disabilities or autism live with dignity, independence and stability; making a real difference in your community.

@zetetickhousing

Hello

Welcome to our latest ZetetickLife magazine, The Empowerment Issue.

Supported housing has never been just about roofs, walls, and tenancy agreements. It is about something deeper: giving people the power to live well, with safety, dignity, and choice. That belief sits at the heart of everything we do at Zetetick. It always has.

This issue, that idea of empowerment feels especially alive. The Government is consulting on the future of supported housing, yet smaller charities like ours are still too often left outside the room. It is organisations such as Zetetick that hold the real knowledge, the practical and human insight into what truly works for people with learning disabilities, autism, and additional needs. Our voice matters. It deserves to be heard. We belong at that table.

Inside this issue, you will see empowerment in motion. Our award-winning Maintenance Team shows that quality and care in housing are not optional extras; they are central to tenant wellbeing. You will find the story of this year's Hike4Homes fundraiser, where supporters raised over £7,000 to help create more homes for those who need them most. You will read about our growing work in landlord engagement and hear directly from tenants whose independence and confidence continue to grow with the right support around them. These are not statistics; they are real human stories of progress and pride.

With thirty-seven percent of people with learning disabilities still supported only by family or friends, our work has never been more vital. Too many people are still overlooked, unheard, or left waiting. At Zetetick, we take that responsibility seriously, tailoring every property search and every conversation to each person. When it comes to empowerment, choice is not a luxury, it is a necessity.

Empowerment is not a slogan or an abstract idea. It is practical, visible, and life changing. It is what we choose to do every day. We hope that comes through every page of this issue: in the voices of our tenants, staff, partners, and fellow charities who show what empowerment really looks like in action.

Thank you for standing with us as we continue to provide homes and futures that empower people every single day.

Jonathan Spencer
CEO, Zetetick Housing

Award winning maintenance

We're proud to share that Zetetick Housing has won the Care Handyman / Person category at this year's National Housing with Care Association Awards. This award shines a light on the outstanding work of our Maintenance Team, whose efforts go far beyond fixing and maintaining our homes.

Their care, integrity, and commitment to supporting tenants make a real difference every day and this recognition is a well-earned celebration of all they do – from us all at Zetetick, our Care Partners and indeed Tenants, a huge Thank You!

More than just a walk...

A huge thank you to everyone who took part in this year's annual Hike4Homes fundraiser! This incredible 30-mile trek from Eastbourne to Lewes was no small feat. Together we raised over £7,300 to help create more homes and support adults with learning disabilities.

From our walkers, volunteers and staff to Jez in the van, this event was a true team effort, and we couldn't have done it without all the encouragement and energy behind the campaign. The hike also helped boost our engagement online and in the wider community, even earning us a special shoutout from The Proclaimers!

A special thank you goes to Sophia Rapley for organising the event, as well as to our local supporters, GoFitness, for providing nutrition plans and practice walks, and Harvey's Brewery, for hosting our well-earned celebratory pint at the finish line.

Hike4Homes is more than just a walk, it is an opportunity to come together as a community to deliver impact and raise money for small but mighty charity.

Christmas Campaign

This festive season, Zetetick Housing invites tenants and supporters to join our 'All I Want for Christmas' campaign. We will be asking our tenants to share their wishes to show how thoughtful contributions can unwrap greater gifts of wellbeing, independence and belonging. Join us on social media @zetetickhousing as we countdown to Christmas and show how the gifts that truly make life worth living do not fit under a tree.

Meet our new team!

Helen – Fundraising and Communications Manager

I started as Fundraising and Communications Manager at Zetetick in September. I bring 20 years' experience in communications and fundraising across both the charity and statutory sectors, working on rights and equalities issues. As an autism parent and carer, I am excited to combine my professional expertise and personal insights to help empower individuals with complex needs to live fulfilling lives in their own homes.

Lisa – Digital Marketing and Communications Officer

I joined Zetetick as a Digital Marketing and Communications Officer in September. My background is in marketing, communications and project management in the charity and healthcare sectors, and I've always been interested in work that makes a difference to people's everyday lives. What drew me to Zetetick is the way that it puts people first – providing housing that feels safe, welcoming and supportive. I'm really looking forward to being part of a team that helps individuals with complex needs live with independence and choice.

Kate – Housing Officer

I joined Zetetick housing in July this year. I am a Housing officer for the South-East. I have a strong background in housing management, social housing, homelessness (including vulnerable clients who are entrenched rough sleepers), risk of eviction, complex needs and multiple challenges. I would like to tell you that Zetetick housing is unique and diverse! The team is close knit, which makes it supportive and collaborative. This then creates a supportive environment for the tenants with a person-centred approach.

Louise – Housing Officer

Louise is starting with us this autumn and we are beyond excited to have her join the team! With a wealth of experience across Housing Management for both the private and social sector we can't wait to have her on board. Like all our Housing Officers at Zetetick, she will be an integral part of securing and maintaining our safe and secure homes.

Andy – Maintenance Officer

I started working for Zetetick four months ago as a maintenance officer. I have been in the construction industry for 38 years and can't imagine doing anything else. I enjoy my work so much, especially now at Zetetick. Being able to make a difference to people who thoroughly deserve the support gives me an enormous sense of fulfilment. Empowering people with specific needs to live in supported accommodation knowing we are only a phone call away.

Easton Wamala – Housing Officer

I joined Zetetick in September as a Housing Officer. I bring experience from both housing and social care, alongside several years in estate agency and property procurement, where I supported vulnerable adults, secured compliant housing, and built strong relationships with landlords and local authorities. In my first couple of weeks, I've really enjoyed getting to know the team, visiting properties, meeting tenants and support workers, and getting set up on the systems. I'm excited to be part of an organisation with real social value – helping individuals with learning disabilities and autism to have a safe and welcoming home.

Empowerment starts at home

This summer has been a season of growth, celebration, and empowerment for our tenants. Collaborating with Focus Home Care, we've seen first-hand how the right combination of safe, supportive homes and personalised care can transform lives.

From fun-packed days at Thorpe Park and in Brighton to meaningful community events celebrating Pride Month and Learning Disability Week, tenants have embraced opportunities to connect, learn, and thrive. Whether it's Claire rediscovering her love of swimming and creativity, Charlotte finding balance between activity and wellbeing, or Theo proudly receiving a medal at an Autism Pride celebration, every story reflects the same message: when people feel safe, supported and included, they are empowered.

"At Focus Home Care, we are proud to work closely with Zetetick Housing. Together, we've built a strong and positive working relationship that puts people first. It's not just about providing care or housing it's about creating a safe, supportive environment where our service users can thrive." Emma, Focus

Behind these achievements lies the strong collaboration between Zetetick and Focus. Zetetick ensures tenants have secure, comfortable homes tailored to their needs, while Focus provides the daily care, encouragement, and companionship that enables people to live with independence and confidence. Together, we're not only meeting practical needs but also nurturing ambitions and wellbeing.

One standout story this month was Victoria's move into her very own home at Zetetick's new Falmer Close service. With the dedicated support of Focus staff, Victoria has stepped into an exciting new chapter filled with independence, pride, and joy. Don't believe us? Hear it from Victoria herself "I am so happy, I have my own key, I am so excited, I have my own home wooooo hoooo!"

The heart of this partnership goes beyond emails and house viewings; one thing Focus and Zetetick have in common is that we both place our tenants at the heart of everything we do. Whether that is encouraging our tenants to pursue hobbies, strengthening family bonds, or simply enjoying every day routines with confidence, We are turning our shared mission into reality and we feel privileged to do this alongside Focus, knowing they share that same dedication to empowerment.

"I have worked with Christine and Emma from Focus for over two years and we have built up a close working relationship with them. We currently have seven properties with Focus and are on the hunt for four more. With regular catch ups and monthly meetings, working with Focus is an example of great collaboration in action." Allan, Zetetick

Sharing our stories to inform and inspire

Helen, our new Fundraising and Communications Manager, knows the importance of sharing experiences to shape better housing services.

I am sharing my story to show the power of lived experience to inform and inspire. I have two wonderful autistic sons, Theo (13) and Emerson (12). When autism entered our lives, I felt my dreams for the future were lost. But as I learned more, I realised how amazing autistic individuals are.

I also realised that autism has always been a part of my life. My brother long struggled to understand his place in the world. Finally, we had a name for the challenges he faced and could put in place the support he needs to live well in his own home.

This gives me hope for my sons' futures and fuels my commitment to ensure others can access the same opportunities.

At Zetetick, I would like to put your stories at the heart of our work. Whether you are empowered by living in a Zetetick home, feel confident that your loved one lives in a safe environment, or know that your property is transforming a life, I want to hear from you.

The most powerful stories often come from our tenants. Through her colourful artwork (with a powerful message) and active life, Claire helps inspire others with learning disabilities and embodies the freedom and confidence that come from having the support needed to thrive.

Claire tells us, "As a lady living with Down syndrome, I like to inspire others through my art. I like to produce positive quotes to help others with disabilities to feel better about themselves. Just because we have a disability doesn't mean we cannot and should not use our voices or use the other communicate aids to express how we feel. I hope that my artwork brings hope, joy and encourages others.

"I believe that everyone including people who have a disability deserve to feel seen and valued. I want to help people to be happier, more confident, and feel that they can speak up. I hope that my story can help make someone else's journey easier."

Through our stories we can demonstrate the impact of our work, inspire people to help us house those in need, and influence housing policy and practice for lasting change.

Please get in touch, I'd love to get to know you hclegg@zhc.org.uk

How we champion inclusion and independence at Grace Eyre

Purple production events

Campaigning

Empowerment is at the heart of everything we do at the Grace Eyre Foundation. Every day, we support people with a learning disability and autistic people to achieve their ambitions and live life the way they choose. Through co-production, mentorship, campaigning, and skills-building, we help people grow in confidence and independence.

Founded in 1898, Grace Eyre is one of the oldest charities in Sussex. Today, we provide support at home and in the community, offer creative and inspiring activities, employment programmes, and independent travel training, as well as access to high-quality housing.

Last year, our housing team launched a peer-to-peer project helping tenants connect, build friendships, and strengthen their independence. Led by a Peer-to-Peer Tenancy Support Coordinator and two Peer Mentors with lived experience, the project has reduced isolation and empowered tenants to have a say in their own lives.

We're working hard to become a truly user-led organisation, where people with a learning disability and autistic people help shape decisions at every level. We host the Our Voices team, 80 percent of whom have a learning disability and/or are autistic, to drive inclusion within Grace Eyre and beyond. This includes our volunteer Ambassadors, all self-advocates, who advise on projects, accessibility, and campaigns, ensuring the people we support have their voices heard.

Our next two-year campaign focuses on inclusive employment. Only five percent of people with a learning disability in the UK are in paid work, yet so many more have the desire and ability to do so.

"People with a learning disability and/or autism have a right to access paid work on an equitable basis. Our employment campaign will push for more people to access the workplace.

"From my own lived experience of autism, I know the difference employment has made to me but also understand employers need to be better informed to be confident in nurturing a diverse workforce."

Nathaniel Lawford,
Director of Inclusion and Projects at Grace Eyre

Our Voices also hosts the Purple Productions events team, which plans and runs community events like games and comedy nights, the much-loved Purple Clubhouse, and our co-produced festival, the Big Purple Funfest. These experiences, which are open to all, provide real-world skills, confidence, and a sense of belonging.

Find out how you can get involved with the Our Voices Team www.grace-eyre.org/our-voices or join the fun with Purple Productions: www.grace-eyre.org/purple-productions

At Grace Eyre, empowerment isn't just a goal – it's a way of life. Together, we're creating communities where everyone can lead, contribute, and thrive. Learn more about our work at www.grace-eyre.org

Listening to our Landlords

On behalf of everyone at Zetetick, I want to extend a sincere thank you for taking part in our Landlord Satisfaction Survey earlier this year. We are grateful for the time and thought you gave to sharing your experience, and we truly value your contribution to shaping how we work together.

The survey provided helpful insights across a range of areas, including communication, rent payments, property maintenance, and overall partnership satisfaction. We were encouraged to hear that many of you feel confident in our relationship, with praise for our team's professionalism, approachability, and reliability. Feedback like this reinforces the importance of the shared trust we aim to build with each of you.

At the same time, your responses have helped us to identify where we can do better. Several key themes emerged:

- Repairs and Responsibilities
  Some landlords noted confusion around who is responsible for certain repairs. We will be refreshing our landlord welcome pack and property management guidance to make this clearer.
- Financial Transparency
  A few of you asked for more clarity around service charges. We're working on simple explanatory notes and offering charge breakdowns on request.
- Communication During Absences
  Where Housing Officers are unavailable, a named backup contact will now be provided to avoid delays.
- Ongoing Engagement
  You suggested brief forums or feedback summaries. We're looking into light-touch engagement options and plan to share a short "You Said, We Did" update in future communications.

Your feedback doesn't just sit on a shelf; it informs our perspective and decision making. We are already incorporating these insights into our internal planning and service development. If you have further comments, or if there's anything you'd like to discuss, please don't hesitate to get in touch.

We remain committed to improving our service and making our partnership with you as smooth, supportive, and collaborative as possible.

Thanks for your partnership and collaboration,

Lisa,
Housing Director

Meet our Maintenance Team

The friendly face of Zetetick in the community.

Andy is one of the newest faces on Zetetick's South East Maintenance Team. He describes himself as "a newbie," having joined just over four months ago. Don't let that fool you, Andy brings a wealth of experience and fresh energy to the role, quickly becoming an integral part of the team.

Here he is in conversation with Horace, a familiar face who's been with Zetetick since 2018 as part of our Croydon Maintenance Team. From repairing broken doors to dealing with full-blown leaks, Horace has seen just about everything. His expertise and easy sense of humour have made him a cornerstone of the maintenance crew and a go-to for stories from years on the job.

When the two come together, there's no shortage of conversation. They swap experiences, share laughs, and reflect on what empowerment really means in their line of work in a supported housing charity.

What does an average day at Zetetick look like for you?

Andy: Get in bright and early, around 7:30/7:45, usually the first person in early doors. We have our morning debrief where we go over the jobs that need doing. We call the tenants / care partners to book in the jobs, remind them that we are coming, and then get straight to it. No two days are the same here at Zetetick, it's so diverse. It could be a dripping tap or a broken window, that's one of the joys of the job. The work is so varied that the time flies by.

Horace: We start the same way, briefing our managers, specifically if ever there was an emergency over-night, these are what we start with. In Croydon, we make appointments with the staff and the tenants and often when we get there, there are more things to do than called in. So we have to make sure we can get everything reported and pictures taken to make sure all the jobs that need doing can be done in the right time.

Can you share a time when your work made a real difference to a resident's comfort or wellbeing?

Horace: I remember one Christmas, I was just about to start cooking my Christmas meal when we got a call out for a leak in one of our tenant's houses. It was around 8:30am. So, I went over there, not sure what to expect, with only the things in my van... and what I saw when I got there! The kitchen was full of water from a burst copper pipe. So, I went in my van and grabbed a pair of wellies, that's how bad it was. The tenant had been taken to their family's house as originally planned, but I stayed until 4pm fixing the pipe, getting rid of the water and drying it so the tenant could come back to a kitchen that wasn't flooded – before we could get people out after Christmas.

Andy: One of the reasons why I took this job was to make a difference. I have been in construction for thirty-eight years now, but working with adults that have additional needs, there is another aspect to it which I really enjoy, I get a lot of fulfilment from it. The event I think of is when we had torrential rain, we had a property flood from the roof down, like a waterfall from the ceiling. My first thought was the tenant... Make sure she was okay, make sure she was in a dry space, and she was feeling calmer. I went into the bedroom, searched for her stuff... clothes, teddies... and then I went up to the roof and pulled out the blockage. The next week and a half was tidying up her flat and putting it back, repairing any damages.

I have been called out late at night, but it's rewarding because if I didn't go out, what would they do?

We're making a difference in someone else's life, to know that we are there makes a huge difference to them.

What do you enjoy most about being a part of Zetetick?

Andy: Foremost, the tenant comes first, their needs and their wellbeing and off the back of that, it's a great working environment with high job satisfaction. You can be attending at midnight, feeling tired yourself but when interacting with the tenant, to see them smile is why I do it. There are so many hats you have to wear working at Zetetick, and I have learnt that one job that might take you less than an hour, may take longer because you befriend that tenant, forming a bond to build up trust.

Horace: I enjoy most of it! Most of all, as simple as a job may be, lightbulbs changing etc. Once they are happy, you are happy...and if they are not, I am left wondering ... what could I have done better? I have been on training to better communicate with the tenants in London and that definitely helps. It's very important to build up trust with our tenants, getting to know them and a good understanding of their triggers too. It's like Andy said, you have to love your work. If we didn't, we wouldn't be hanging around, but we all want to be here.

What does Empowerment mean to you?

Horace: Empowerment for me, first and foremost is about equality, not forcing anyone's hands. Empowerment is about understanding that everyone has knowledge or something to offer and to give people the time to share that. Empowerment is working together, with hearts and hands, to make the lives of our tenants better.

Andy: Empowerment to me would be to support the tenant to live an independent lifestyle, empowering them to maintain a sense of self-worth and pride. Without feeling discriminated against or an odd one out. One example I can think of was when we were both on call and a tenant called because their bathroom was being re-done. She called up, worried and through that conversation she told us that she would rather have a shower than a bathtub. We then were able to advocate for our tenant, and the landlord allowed us to take the bath out and replace it with a shower. She had input and choice, and that is what empowerment for me looks like.

At the end of the day, it's her home, and she should have a say when it comes to these things, just as anyone else would.

What makes us an award winning Maintenance Team within the care and housing sector?

Stories such as these come from dedicated and passionate staff like Andy and Horace. Luckily for us we have a team full of them. We feel very lucky to have staff that are inspired by making a difference and empower our tenants in their homes, one repair at a time.

A collaborative success story in specialist housing

The Brinkley Project began in 2023 with a clear and compassionate mission: to transform a three-bedroom bungalow in Worcester Park into a safe, welcoming and fully adapted home for a very special client under the local NHS Trust. From the outset, the property was earmarked to meet the complex needs of its future tenant, requiring a series of bespoke modifications to ensure both comfort and safety.

To determine the scope of work, a multi-agency meeting was convened, bringing together ten representatives including Zetetick staff, care providers, and NHS professionals. Their shared goal was to align on the necessary standards and adaptations required to make the property suitable for the prospective tenant. In January 2025, Capstone Chartered Surveyors were formally commissioned to oversee the pre-contract works, ensuring every detail was managed with precision and care.

Work commenced in March, marking the beginning of a comprehensive transformation. The property underwent a full facelift, with safety considerations at the heart of every decision. Adaptations were meticulously planned and executed – from the removal of sharp edges to the installation of rounded fixtures and robust, sturdy furniture designed to withstand daily use while promoting independence and wellbeing.

By July, the NHS had officially signed off on the adaptations, confirming that the property met all required standards. From the beginning of September, the future tenant began weekly visits, gradually familiarising themselves with their new environment and building a sense of ownership and comfort.

This project stands as a testament to the power of collaboration. Zetetick's maintenance team worked hand-in-hand with contractors and NHS representatives, ensuring that every element of the refurbishment was tailored to the tenant's needs.

The result is a uniquely adapted home, ready to welcome its new resident and provide a foundation for stability, dignity, and care.

The Brinkley Project has been a tremendous success, not only for Zetetick and the NHS, but most importantly, for the individual whose life will be positively transformed by this thoughtful and inclusive housing solution.

How Zetetick creates safe homes and empowered lives

Step 1: It all begins with a referral. These come from our trusted care providers who work closely with local authorities, councils, and the NHS. The referral outlines the specific needs of the individual, what kind of home would best support them, what adaptations may be required, and where they would feel most settled. This becomes the blueprint for our search for their long-term home.

Step 2: Our network of letting agents, investors, and landlords allows us to find the right property while offering peace of mind to those on the other side of the deal. We provide landlords with guaranteed rent, long-term stability, and a completely hands-off letting experience, all thanks to our award winning 24/7 Maintenance Team. For us, it's about creating security for landlords while opening doors for people who need a safe, sustainable home.

Step 3: Choice is too often overlooked in supported housing, but at Zetetick, it's non-negotiable. When we identify a potential home, we arrange collaborative viewings with care providers and our housing team to ensure it fits the tenant's practical and support needs. Once we're confident in the property, we invite the future tenants and their families to view it too. We offer them a chance to give an opinion, and that's just one way we look to empower a hidden demographic that often gets overlooked when it comes to that choice.

Step 4: Once the lease is signed, our Maintenance Team swings into action. From decorating and landscaping to specialist safety adaptations in partnership with the NHS – we make sure the home is welcoming, safe, and tailored to individual needs. We take care of the hassle, like meter readings and furnishings. That way we can make the move as seamless as possible.

Step 5: On move-in day, tenants receive not just keys, but a warm welcome. Each household is given a starter pack with kitchen essentials, furnishings, and a Zetetick goodie bag filled with practical tools like repair guides and personal touches like mugs, pens, and tea towels. It's our way of making sure the house feels like a home from day one.

Step 6: Our commitment doesn't end at the doorstep. We continue to work with care providers to carry out homeliness visits, inspections and regular informal check-ins. We also host community events designed to build connections, peer support, and a sense of belonging among tenants. Because housing isn't just about where you live, it's about building a community to live within. Empowerment starts at home but goes far and beyond when you are a Zetetick Tenant.

WHY SUPPORT US?

At Zetetick Housing, we believe that everyone should be empowered to live fulfilling lives; and that begins with a safe home. Every day, we provide housing solutions that give people with learning disabilities and/or autism dignity, independence, and the chance to thrive in their communities. With your support, we can continue to provide houses that become homes.

MAKE A DONATION TODAY

Every gift helps us provide specialist housing for those who need it most. Just £10 could fund an essential household adaptation, providing a secure foundation for a new tenancy. By setting up a regular gift, you help us plan ahead, giving us stability to build on for our tenants.

Donate now: justgiving.com/zetetickhousing

LEAVE A LASTING LEGACY

We all wish to provide well for our loved ones after we have gone. By leaving a gift in your will, you can also support our tenants to live independently well into the future. A legacy donation helps us continue to grow our housing provision, advocate for inclusive housing policy, and transform lives. In-memory giving also offers a meaningful way to celebrate the life of a loved one – or secure the future of those they loved – by supporting homes where people can flourish.

CALLING ALL FUNDRAISERS

There are countless ways to raise money for Zetetick. From our annual Hike4Homes event to bake sales, art exhibitions, concerts, and community events, every effort makes a difference. This is also a great way to tell others how good housing allows people with a learning disability and/or autism to thrive in their communities. We'll support you with resources, ideas, and encouragement every step of the way.

PHILANTHROPISTS AND PARTNERSHIPS

Whether through a significant personal gift or a partnership with a trust, foundation, or business, your support helps us deliver lasting housing solutions. From funding specific property projects to expanding tenant engagement, Zetetick Housing works closely with you to ensure your generosity has the greatest impact. Together, we can align your goals with our mission to create inclusive, community based housing – transforming properties into homes where people truly belong.

SHARE YOUR SKILLS

Giving your time and skills can make a huge difference. Whether you're a social media icon, green-fingered, have a head for numbers or know how to shake a collection tin, we can find a role for you. Volunteering with Zetetick is a great way to connect with others, learn new skills, and see first-hand the impact of creating safe, supportive homes.
